- The execution of a contract that we have concluded with you and / or
- compliance with a legal obligation, and / or
- Your consent to the use of your data, and / or
- The existence of a legitimate interest in using your data. The legitimate interest is a set of business or business reasons that justifies the use of your data by U.F.E. Sousse

If you have any questions about this document, you can contact the U.F.E Data Protection Officer. SOUSSE (festivalbdtunisie.sousse@gmail.com)

2 - Who is responsible for the treatments mentioned in this document?

The controller of the treatments mentioned in this document is the U.F.E. SOUSSE, association governed by the law N ° 2011-88 of 24 September 2011, N ° 151 of 19 December 2017, whose registered office is at: BP N ° 771 - Rue el Fourat - Cité Jawhara 4000 SOUSSE, including Mrs. Roselyne CORDIN, President, is the legal representative.

The Data Protection Officer of the U.F.E. SOUSSE is Monsieur Yannick CORDIN.

3- What data do we collect about you and under what circumstances do we collect it?

3.1 The data that you send us directly

On the occasion of the various contacts that we have with you, you can be brought to communicate us information which concerns you. They are collected especially when subscribing to a newsletter, the creation of an account on our sites and applications or to access any other offer or any other service.

These data include your e-mail address and any other information you wish to bring to our attention.

3.2 Data We Collect During Our Business Relationship

The data we collect during our business relationship with you include the following:

- Your participation in promotional offers, contests or events:
- The requests you made to our Association, or the incidents that you have reported to us, for example regarding the performance of our services;

3.3 The data we automatically collect

During each of your visits to our sites and applications, we collect information about your connection and your navigation. Different technologies can be implemented to collect this data. The main one is the cookie.

Data collected through cookies

A cookie is a text file posted when you visit an online site, application or advertisement and stored in a specific area on your computer or mobile device's hard drive. Cookies are managed by your Internet browser and only the sender of a cookie can decide to read or modify the information contained therein.

A cookie has a limited validity period. Its deposit and storage on your terminal are done in compliance with the applicable legislation and subject to the choices you have expressed and that you can change at any time, under the conditions specified in Article 9 below.

A cookie does not identify you personally. It allows its transmitter to recognize your terminal and collect a certain amount of information relating to the navigation carried out from this terminal.

Cookies have several functions, such as allowing you to navigate efficiently on a site or an application, remembering your choices, goods and services you want to buy, offer you relevant advertising content according to your interests expressed during your navigation. You will find more information about cookies on the following websites:

www.cnil.fr

www.allaboutcookies.org

www.aboutcookies.org

www.youronlinechoices.eu

The cookies deposited by U.F.E. SOUSSE subject to your choices give us access to the following information:

- Identifiers of the equipment you use (IP address of your computer, Android ID, Apple ID, etc.)
- Type of operating system used by your device (Microsoft Windows, Apple OS, Linux, BeOs, etc.)
- Type and version of the browser software used by your device (Microsoft Internet Explorer, Apple Safari, Mozilla Firefox, Google Chrome, etc.)

- Dates and times of connection to our services,
- Address of the Internet page of origin ("referrer"),
- Navigation data on our services, content viewed.

Data collected by standard Internet technologies

We are also likely to use standard Internet technologies, such as scripts, pixels, and redirects. Scripts (sometimes called tags), written in javascript language, are programs that run in your browser and perform various actions, for example sending information to our servers. Scripts are also able to create pixels. Pixels (sometimes called transparent GIFs, clear GIFs, or Web-bugs) are lines of code that allow you to display a graphic image (usually invisible) on a web page or in an e-mail. Redirects make it possible to make a web page available under several page addresses (URLs). When a browser opens a redirect URL, a page with a different URL is opened.

The purpose of these technologies is to improve your experience on our sites and applications, including personalized content according to your interests. For example, when a user clicks an article sharing button, a script creates a pixel that counts the share. Thus, we are able to know the total number of shares of an article, and we can establish the ranking of the most shared articles.

These technologies give us access to the following information:

- Information about your use of our sites and applications;
- Information about the presence of cookies on your device, the time and date of consultation of a page, and a description of the page where the web beacon is put;
- Information about the reading or not of the emails we send you, about the clicks you make on the links contained in these emails.

Our sites and applications may also include scripts, pixels and third-party redirects. These technologies allow third-party service providers to collect certain information such as your browser type, and the web page that has redirected you to our websites. These third-party service providers process the information they collect on our websites. These third-party service providers process the information they collect for auditing, research, and reporting purposes on our sites and apps and the advertisements they view. We do not share your credentials with these third parties as part of their use of these technologies.

3.4 Data on minors

In principle, our products and services are aimed at adults who are able to subscribe to contractual obligations.

The minor user must obtain the consent of his legal guardian before the communication of his personal data.

For registration on our site and some of our online services (newsletter for example), the age of 16 is accepted.

A user under the age of 18 at the time of publication or subscription to the newsletter has a specific right to erase data concerning him. For further information, please contact the U.F.E Association Data Protection Officer. SOUSSE: festivalbdtunisie.sousse@gmail.com)

3.5 Data on a third party

Before offering a third party subscription or any other product or service that we market, you must ensure that the data subject agrees that his personal data, including his postal address, are communicated to us.

3.6 Exclusion of any sensitive data

The U.F.E. SOUSSE does not collect any sensitive data about you. Sensitive data includes: racial or ethnic origin, political opinions, religious or philosophical beliefs, union membership, health data or sexual orientation. If such information was in any way communicated to us, it will be deleted.
